Youth and Family Ministries Residency

Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church
921 Madison Avenue
New York, NY 10021

Telephone: 212.288.8920

www.mapc.com

The Youth and Family Ministries Residency Program is designed to teach current or recent graduates of M.Div. or MA Youth Ministry programs how to develop and implement a vision for youth and family ministries. A seminary education is critical in giving a ministry leader the theological knowledge and expertise necessary to guide the spiritual development of others. This residency is designed to complement that education by providing the opportunity to hone the practical experience and skills that are also critical in parish ministry: administration, working with lay leadership, including lay teachers and committee members, working with budgets, engaging with session, and evangelism. The residency period shall be one year (June 2013-June 2014), with an option to reapply for one additional year. Compensation includes a stipend of $2,000 a month plus a 1 bedroom apartment and utilities. To apply submit the following materials to mat@mapc.com by February 10: cover letter indicating interest. Please give a brief description of your sense of call and your ministry background. It would also be helpful to describe any significant non-ministry related professional experience you may have had. Also send a CV and two sample sermons, one narrative (for any age group), and one crafted for children or youth. Please specify the context of each sermon.

This two year residency program was established for seminary graduates who hold particular promise as pastors and wish to develop their ministerial skills in the context of a supportive multi-staf environment. The program has a threefold emphasis: missional, pastoral, and vocational. Responsibilities in the mission track include: being primary staff person to support, equip and resource all local outreach efforts; resource, empower, and educate the congregation regarding local issues of homelessness, poverty, hunger, and children at risk; and resource and assist church leaders in cultivating healthy relationships with local service agencies. In the pastoral track, the residency focuses on the various areas of ministry and the leadership skills essential to effective ordained ministry. This includes functions typically associated with pastoral ministry: weekly worship planning meetings, preaching, and general pastoral care. The resident will also have opportunity to explore vocational clarity, discerning how one’s particular set of gifts can be used faithfully in the context of parish ministry. This program begins on May 20, 2013 and goes to August, 2015. Applicants must be on track for ordination in the PCUSA.

The Presbyterian Church of the Lord is a mission oriented, 8,000 member church in the Gangnam area of Seoul. They are seeking a candidate who is interested in meeting the challenge of doing ministry in foreign context among expatriates from around the world and with native Korean speakers eager to learn and worship God in English. The position begins approximately June, 2013. Compensation includes salary, quarterly bonus, retirement contribution, home utilities allowance, cell phone allowance and book allowance. In addition, the church will provide partly furnished housing large enough for a 4 person family and will issue a car. Automobile expenses are completely covered by the church. There is also a stipend to help with the air ticket to Korea. The current pastor is a PCUSA teaching elder who transitioned his family from the United States to this call, and so is able to help with the process and to answer questions about the ministry. They are open to receive applications from those still in the ordination process. To see the full job description/terms of call, contact carol.belles@ptsem.edu. To apply, submit a resume, along with a photograph, to the current Director of English Ministry, the Rev. Samuel Weddington at pclenglish@gmail.com.
The Gospel Herald

The Gospel Herald is seeking a reporter to interview Christian leaders, analyze and produce news reports both in Chinese and English, verify resources, pursue related events, and update information on the company website and newspaper. A master’s degree in divinity or journalism with three years experience is preferred. Candidates should be fluent in English and Chinese. For more information or to apply email inc.info@gospelherald.com.
