

PRINCETON THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY'S

2015-16 STUDENT ADMINISTRATIVE HEALTH FEE (SAHF)
EFFECTIVE DATE: September 1, 2015

For the purposes of this plan document, the term Student Administrative Health Fee (SAHF) also means Comprehensive Fee Services

Comprehensive Fee Services (SAHF)

Princeton Theological Seminary charges a Comprehensive Fee (SAHF) that includes components that are dedicated to providing access to mental health care services and crisis intervention, medical evacuation and repatriation coverage, and certain other health related services, and health education and wellness programming. As explained in this document, the eligibility and/or limitations for these services are based on provisions and definitions within the Plan Document for the Student Health Benefits Plan (SHBP).

Student Counseling at PTS

The Seminary provides a broad spectrum of counseling, spiritual direction, support groups, and health education and wellness services. Students should refer to the Student Health Program brochure for a description of services and applicable copayments or session charges.

Trinity Counseling Services (TCS)

Students who are covered by the Comprehensive Fee (SAHF) are eligible to use services at Trinity Counseling Service. The Seminary provides a lifetime maximum benefit of ten (10) sessions, subject to a copayment of $10 per session, under the scope of services provided by the Comprehensive Fee (SAHF). Previous usage of TCS prior to the effective date of this document does not count toward the lifetime maximum benefit.

The TCS benefit does not include services for psychiatric visits for medication consultation or management.

Single students may use their counseling benefits for pre-marital counseling, just as married students may use their counseling benefits for marriage counseling. No student receives benefits beyond those to which they are normally entitled. That is, a single student may have 10 lifetime (visit prior to September 1, 2009, do not count toward this limit) subsidized sessions at Trinity through their Comprehensive Fee (SAHF). A student may use some or all of these 10 visits for pre-marital counseling. As always, when the 10 sessions have been used the student bears responsibility for payment, either through the SHBP or their own private insurance. If both people in the couple are students, they each have their own 10 session benefit, and together they may use their 20 sessions for pre-marital counseling. When the 20 sessions have been used, additional individual, pre-marital, or couple counseling is the responsibility of the student(s), again through the SHBP or their own private insurance. Trinity Counseling Service and providers in the Specialty Counseling Network will select a diagnosis code that can apply to pre-marital sessions.

Occupational Health Services

The Seminary has retained Occupational Health Services at Princeton HealthCare System to review and maintain immunization records for incoming students and to provide immunization services for both incoming and international students. Immunization services are also provided for students traveling abroad. The cost for immunizations for incoming international students must be paid by the student at the time of service at Occupational Health Services. The Seminary pays for the cost of immunizations for students enrolled in the Field Education International Program.

MEDICAL EVACUATION AND REPATRIATION COVERAGE AND SERVICES

The Comprehensive Fee (SAHF) provides medical evacuation and repatriation coverage, as well as limited health care insurance benefits, for students who are not covered by the SHPB (SHBP benefits are provided separately) when students covered by the Comprehensive Fee (SAHF) travel abroad for programs that are provided by the Seminary. Students should consult the Student Health Program brochure and the PTS Student Health Program web site for details pertaining to services and benefits provided.

NOTICE

Unless otherwise specified, the Comprehensive Fee (SAHF) services and coverage described in this document do not constitute an insurance or health benefits plan. These benefits are provided as form of Student Administrative Health Fee (refer to CMS-9981-F) that is commonly provided by New Jersey colleges and universities, both public and private institutions.
